

As we got informed about the lockdown, i did wait a second to go home.

When I reached home, it was not as usual.
No Hug. Shower first was their order.

Lockdown for me was a chance to find quality time for myself, which i started with watching TV shows.

After a few days, it started to get boring.
So decided to attend the Zommlessons.

Days passed, weeks passed, months passed, and there was not a single video left to watch on the internet.

I actually did not know what to do next.
They've locked me up. I can't do anything.
And then, for the very first time in this lockdown, i looked out the window.

Soon i realized, it wasn't them who locked me up, it was me. I could've explored and done so many things. It was too late to fly the kite.
The wind stopped blowing.